

Hi, my name is Glenn Stegall, the Information Security Orientation course manager.

If you work with classified information, have responsibilities for everyday protection of classified information, and require an overview of the DoD Information Security Program, then the Information Security Orientation Course is for you.

The Information Security Orientation Course is a two day instructor-led course that introduces you to the fundamentals of the Information Security Program, including the proper classifying, handling, transmission, safeguarding, and dissemination of classified information.

On occasion, this course can be tailored to address your activity's specific needs.

If you attend the Information Security Orientation Course, you will leave with the skills and knowledge necessary to successfully and effectively work with classified information within the DoD Information Security Program.

Additional information regarding the Information Security Orientation Course is available from the CDSE course catalog.

I look forward to seeing you in the Information Security Orientation Course.
